

Manufacture of Postage Stamps and Postal Notes—Big Figures.

The Oleomargarine Tax—Bill to Prevent Fraud on American Manufacturers—A Crooked Congressman.

An Amendment to the Oleomargarine Law—Died of His Wounds—Appointed—Congressional Proceedings.

The Manufacture of Postage Stamps.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Postmaster-General Vilas and third assistant General Hazen returned from New York Monday night. The object of their visit was to inspect the methods of manufacturing postage stamps and postal notes, under contracts with the American Bank Note Company and the Homer Lea Bank Note Company. General Vilas expressed his satisfaction with the way the business was conducted. The number of adhesive stamps issued during the past year was over one billion, six hundred million, valued at thirty-three million dollars. To make these stamps it costs less than seven cents per thousand, while twenty years ago it cost twenty-seven cents. During the past year six million postal notes were issued by the Government representing $12,000,000.

The Bill to Prevent Frauds on American Manufacturers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The Senate committee on finance yesterday amended and ordered to be favorably reported Senator Platt's bill to prevent frauds on American manufacturers. It declares that after July 1, 1897, the importation of all articles of foreign manufacture, or packages containing the same when stamped, branded or labeled, to represent that such articles were manufactured in the United States, is prohibited, and the same shall be forfeited unless reported within ninety days after they shall have been received at any custom house. Senator Morrill reported the bill to the Senate.

The Oleomargarine Tax.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The Secretary of the Treasury yesterday submitted to the Senate a report prepared by Mr. Miller, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in answer to Senator Ingalls' resolution calling for information in regard to the operation of the oleomargarine law. By this report it appears that since November 1, the date at which the law went into effect, special taxes have been assessed on thirty-four manufacturers on 304 wholesale dealers, and on 5,415 retail dealers. The number of pounds assessed at two cents a pound was 1,430,171.

An Amendment to the Oleomargarine Law.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The bill introduced in the Senate yesterday amending the oleomargarine law provides that the section of the statute requiring all oleomargarine to be marked by its manufacturers in tins, tubs or other wooden packages, each containing not less than ten pounds, and marked, stamped and branded as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall prescribe, shall not apply to oleomargarine transported in bond for exportation and actually exported.

Crooked Doings of a North Carolina Congressman.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—There are still no tidings of Congressman Reid, of North Carolina, about whose financial affairs very serious stories are in circulation. The latest report is that he has hypothecated his salary half a dozen times over to "confidence" brokers, and by this means raised as much as $30,000. It is reported that he has gone to Canada.

Died of His Wound.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—John C. Miller, a patient attorney who was shot in the street here last Wednesday by Geo. N. Walker, died yesterday. Miller lived six days with a hole through his body, the fatal bullet having perforated his stomach and liver, and then passed out through his back.

Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Charles Robinson, of Kansas, was yesterday appointed superintendent of the Haskell Indian Industrial School at Lawrence, Kan., vice Grabowsky, of Georgia, resigned.

FORTY-NINTH CONGRESS.

(Second Session.)

SENATE.

MR. SPOONER, D. C.—Mr. Spooner presented a memorial from the German society of Wisconsin, expressing the desire that there was no further necessity for stimulating immigration to this country, and that no satisfactory reason can be shown for allowing foreigners to vote and hold office after one year's residence, and when they are naturalized, and suggesting the enactment of laws making naturalization and suffrage conform to a uniform standard. Referred.

MR. MORRILL, from the committee on Finance, reported back favorably the bill for the relief and reviving of the oleomargarine tax, and a bill to prevent frauds on American manufacturers, as amended.

The following bills were introduced and referred:

By Mr. Harrison, to increase the pensions of those whose disabilities are equivalent to the loss of a hand or foot.

By Mr. Ingalls, for the support of the Washington Monument, and also to authorize the President to commission to permit the temporary occupation of sites for relief of the transportation of material to ditto about the base of the Washington monument; also a resolution instructing the committee on Indian affairs to inquire into the question of how charged the Cheyenne Indians for their stock raising. Adopted.

HOUSE.

The book of the estimates for the fiscal year of 1898, submitted by the Secretary of the Treasury, was laid before the House.

Mr. Herbert (Ala.) offered a resolution directing the reference to the committee on naval affairs of so much of the book of estimates as referred to naval yards, stations and new naval observatories.

Mr. Morrison has notified the House that on Saturday next he will move that the House go into committee of the whole on consideration of the revenue bills.

The Boston Municipal Election.

Boston, Dec. 15.—The municipal election resulted in the re-election of Mayor Hugh O'Brien. The total vote, with two exceptions, to hear from, was 44,639, of which O'Brien had 23,838; Earl, 8,672; O'Brien, 18,174; McNeill, Labor, 8,672; O'Brien's plurality, 4,709; majority, 3,130.

The Complete Returns.

Boston, Dec. 15.—Complete returns give the following vote for mayor: O'Brien, 24,887; Earl, 18,729; McNeill, 8,504; total, 45,670. Last year O'Brien received 30,672 votes, against 18,092 for the Republican candidate, a total vote of 48,764. The Democrats elect seven aldermen and the Republicans five.

The Common Council will stand thirty-five Democrats and thirty-two Republicans. The Democrats elect a majority of the school board. License vote, yes, 20,223; no, 16,750; a majority of 3,473 for license, against 3,908 last year.

Goes For License.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 15.—Samuel Window, the Republican candidate for mayor, defeated John R. Thayer, Democrat, by 805 majority in the largest vote ever polled. A full Republican Board of Aldermen is elected. The city goes for license.

Workmen's Candidate Re-Elected.

LYNN, Mass., Dec. 15.—Geo. D. Hart, workmen's candidate, is re-elected mayor over Rufus Kimball, citizens' candidate. It is believed the city votes license by a substantial majority.

A Conference of Anti-Morrison Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—A conference of Democrats opposed to the Morrison tariff bill was held last night at the Biggs House. They agreed to vote for the Hewitt administrative bill and declared in favor of a reduction of the revenues at this session of Congress. It could not be ascertained whether they declared against voting to consider the Morrison bill or not. Mr. Morrison declares that many Republicans will vote for consideration and the success of his bill is assured.

'Tis Not Fair—of

Augusta, Me., Dec. 14.—The Kennebec Journal mysteriously refers to a faro club in Washington, which, it says, consists of three Southwestern Senators, a Maine Senator, sixty-one members of Congress and twenty citizens, the dealer of which is a committee clerk, and which has killed legislation against gambling in the District of Columbia. The Journal says there is food for much scandal in the doings of this club.

Dismissed the Action.

MONTREAL, Can., Dec. 14.—The Supreme Court has dismissed Arpino & Mercier's action for damages brought against the North Shore railway. The plaintiffs allege that the company had neglected to transport a quantity of hay at a given time from Quebec to Boston and New York. The claims affected by this amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

Shot Better Than Tenbetter.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 15.—Henry Tenbetter, colored, went to the house of a colored man on the outskirts of the city last night and demanded admission, which was refused. He pulled a board off the building and fired two shots through the hole, when Frank Thomas, a colored man, fired on Tenbetter from within. The ball taking effect in the breast, causing instant death. Thomas has been placed in jail, pending trial.

Servant Girls' Union.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Dec. 14.—The domestic servants of this place have formed a union for the purpose of advancing their wages. Employers who refuse to pay the advance will be boycotted, as will also girls who refuse to join. The movement is looked upon with much amusement, but thus far has received no opposition.

No 'Gentleman' Must Doubt the Honesty of Bob's Infidelity.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—At a dinner of the "Thirteen" Club last night Colonel R. G. Ingersoll denied the statement of Rev. Mr. Morse that he preached infidelity because it paid and not because he believed in it. He said it was evident that the author of such a false statement was not a gentleman though he might be a minister of the Gospel.

The Official Vote of Texas.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 14.—The official count of the vote for Governor and other State officers is now in progress in the office of the Secretary of State. The treasurer's vote was completed last night. It gives 200,390 for Lubbock (Dem.); 88,652 for Cleaves (Rep.) and 14,882 for Jackson (Pro.)

A Costly Game of Foot-Ball.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 15.—Geo. Walckens, a member of the foot-ball team of Yale, died last night of typhoid fever. He had been ill ever since his return from the Yale-Princeton Thanksgiving day game, and it is thought his illness was brought on by exposure that day. His age was twenty-two years.

CHARLESTON'S RELIEF.

Report of the Earthquake Committee of Funds Received and Disbursed.

The Balance on Hand to Be Devoted to Building a City Hospital as Grateful Memorial.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 15.—The earthquake relief committee, headed by Mayor Courtenay, chairman, made a formal report to the City Council last night of the total amount contributed by the country in general for the relief of the earthquake sufferers, together with the disposition they have made of the same. The labors of the committee are now nearly finished, and from their report the following facts are obtained: The total amount of the various sums received by the committee up to date is $815,000. Of this sum New York contributed $152,631; New York State outside of the city, about $21,000; Boston's contribution was $75,000; Baltimore, $17,000; New Orleans, $47,750; San Francisco, $10,000. The remainder was contributed by other States and Territories, nearly every one of which sent something. In addition to the above, handsome sums were received from many countries of the old world. The citizens of South Carolina gave to the relief fund $18,308, and Charleston, $60,000.

In addition to the above, the following considerable amounts were contributed to private parties and for rebuilding shattered churches and charitable institutions: To Episcopal churches, $15,000; Catholic, $20,000; Presbyterian, $15,000; Baptist, $10,000; Methodist, $5,404; Anglican, $6,300; Lutheran, $5,731; Hazel Street Synagogue, $30,000; Hebrew Benevolent Society, $4,300; Confederate Home, $5,000; Medical College, $25,000; other charitable organizations, $30,000; and for Masonic relief, $35,048.

From the fund received the committee have furnished food houses and shelter to 14,000 people, who otherwise would have been destitute. The balance remaining on hand is now $786,000, and from this amount the committee have appropriated $8,600 to complete repairs to injured houses, and the remainder is to be devoted to building a city hospital in place of the one destroyed by the earthquake. The new hospital will be a memorial to the magnificent charity of the American people.

FLAMES AFLOAT.

Burning of the Steamer J. M. White on the Lower Mississippi.

Sixty Persons Burned to Death, But the White Officers of the Vessel Were Not Among Them.

Heartrending Scenes Described by Eye-Witnesses—Humble Heroes and Their Noble Deeds.

New Orleans, Dec. 15.—From interviews with men and officers of the ill-fated steamer, J. M. White, the New Orleans States has collected the following details of the disaster:

The White was hauled up to the dock, and thirty or forty roustabouts were getting cotton-seed aboard, when Watchman Tom Miller began to ring the alarm bell and shouts of "fire" were heard. Great confusion ensued. Employees ran quickly about to wake up the sleeping passengers, who hurried out partly dressed and panic-stricken.

Second Engineer Tom Barry was the man who first saw the fire. It was in a cotton bale amidship. He cried "fire," and Miller at once began ringing the bell and stayed at his post until driven away by the advancing flames.

Wm. McGreevy, chief engineer, was asleep in the Texas. Being awakened by the clanging bell, he sprang from his bed and groped his way through the smoke to arouse his partner, John Palastier, second assistant engineer. Meeting Palastier about midway, the two men began a search through the suffocating smoke for others who slept in the Texas. They were unable to discover any one and believing all had escaped, they crawled to the hurricane deck, from whence they climbed down on one of the stanchions to the right side of the boat and escaped to shore.

Two streams of water had been brought to play upon the fire, and the engineers fought the flames step by step, but were finally forced to drop the hose and save themselves.

The flames made very rapid progress, and in a short time the entire left side of the boat was a mass of flames. The railing of the cabin deck was soon on fire, and the entire boat was encircled in flames. The shrieks of the passengers and crew and the crackling of the fire caused great excitement.

Head Clerk McVay was in his cabin when he heard the first alarm. He had barely time to secure some of the money from the safe and the most valuable papers, before the flames were upon him. He then ran out and devoted himself to efforts to save the passengers. He says there were fifteen or eighteen cabin passengers, of whom eight were ladies. He first awakened second clerk John Callahan, who did not stop to put any clothing on except his shirt and trousers. McVay and Callahan made a rapid tour of the rooms to make sure that no one was left unwarned of danger.

Among the passengers who crowded together in the deck, most of whom were clad only in night garments, was a gentleman who was recognized as the superintendent of the Vidalia Southern railroad, who was travelling with his wife and two girls, nine and twelve years old. As the roaring flames drew near the group, the father, seeing that they would be burned to death if they remained, grasped his little girls, one after the other, and threw them into the water. He was urging his wife to take the leap when a burst of flames enveloped them. They soon fell, apparently suffocated by inhaling the fire, and were burned to death.

John Stout and Bob Smith, the pilots on watch were in the pilot-house and were compelled to jump into the river, where they were picked up. They had a narrow escape from death.

So quick was the spread of the flames that it was impossible to see who escaped and who perished. The decks were crowded. While they were escaping, as best they could, the steam pipe blew up. The force of the explosion was terrific. Many bales of cotton were thrown high into the air where they revolved several times and then fell into the river. Just after the explosion shrieks were heard coming from the stern of the boat, where two colored women were soon enveloped by flames. A moment later they had fallen and disappeared.

The wheel-house first gave way, then followed the starboard cabins.

The rescuees were picked up by the steamer Stella Wild. At the last were being taken aboard the four kegs of powder on board blew up and landed the burning wreck in all directions. This virtually put the fire out, as but little was left to burn.

A minute or two after the explosion a cry forward was heard from mid-stream. A boat was lowered from the Stella Wild and pulled in the direction of the call for help. A man was seen through the darkness clinging to a cotton bale, but just as the boat was nearing him the bale turned over, the man's hold was loosened, and he sank to rise no more.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—From all that can be ascertained it is estimated that fully forty persons perished by the burning of the White. The following white people were

MISSING:

L. H. Stafford, wife and daughter, of Vidalia.

Captain G. W. Floyd, a well-known steamboat man.

Mrs. Murray, of Natchez.

Miss Agnes McCabe, of West Feliciana.

Two other lady passengers, names unknown.

Three men and a woman were seen to go down when the hurricane deck fell.

The following colored people are known to have been

LOST:

Levi Robinson, captain of the watch.

Two unknown negro women.

Dick Handolph, fireman.

Oscar Landry and Lewis Martin, cooks.

Albert Brown, cabin boy.

John Parker and Perry Williams, cabin boys.

Amos Morse, porter.

Edward Jackson, cabin boy.

Jenny Walker, chambermaid.

Maria Washington, chambermaid.

Duncan Forth, cook.

Two negro preachers.

A negro woman and her son, from Port Elickey.

Volvin Bell, laborer.

Two negro women, each with a baby.

It is thought that William Daly, of Otto County, Neb., and Mr. Oberchain, of Kentucky, are lost.

Miss McCabe, of West Feliciana, was lost. Her sister made a remarkable escape. She says Captain Floyd lost his life trying to rescue the women.

All the white officers of the boat escaped.

Mr. J. E. Carew and his wife, of Ottawa, Ill., escaped.

The following were also saved, all slightly injured: John Stahl, the pilot; Hortense Smith and Mrs. Smith, of Racine, Wis.; a gentleman and his wife from Chicago, name unknown.

SURVIVORS' STORIES.

Nearly all of the persons rescued from the steamer reached here to-day and gave vivid accounts of the destruction of that splendid vessel. James Collins, the deck watchman, said:

"I had just come out of the hold three minutes before the fire started. I was down there seeing how the water was. As I was responding to the call of the mate, one of the cabin boys shouted, 'This boat's a-fire.' I ran amidships and saw smoke and could smell the cotton burning. I then ran upstairs to the hurricane deck and rang the bell several times. Then I came down stairs and tried to fight my way to the deck-room to see what assistance I could render, but I was driven back by the dense smoke and the flames, which by this time were fast enveloping the boat. I then returned upstairs and met the head cook, and told him that the boat was on fire, and he returned to the cabin to wake up the other cooks. By this time the entire boat was on fire, and the scene was one that I can not describe. I have made many trips on the Mississippi and have seen boats go to the bottom with terrified shrieks on board, but I never witnessed such a scene as that last night—women shrieking, children screaming and men exhorting, and all rushing frantically up and down beseeching assistance, and when they saw that the condition was a desperate one they plunged into the river. Some became benumbed with cold and went down, others were crushed between cotton bales, while a few were fortunate enough to reach shore. Nearly all that were lost were aft. The wind drove the fire and smoke in that direction, and those who lacked the courage to leap into the river were roasted alive or suffocated to death. I believe that nearly every one who was forward was saved. There may have been some who lost their presence of mind and jumped into the river and were lost. I saw the pilot on watch leap overboard. As he struck the water he was caught by one of the sailor-men, dragged into the yawl and brought ashore."

Mr. F. J. Dolson, the carpenter, told this story: "The bell rang furiously seven or eight times. I knew instinctively it was fire. I snatched some clothing and ran outside and met Bob Smith, the pilot, and McGreevy. Smith told Mac to go aft. Mac replied, 'No, sir; go forward.' They then went out on the larboard side and climbed down the stanchions. I left the Texas and went on the starboard side of the hurricane roof and clung to the wall to the boiler deck, forward of the mainmast, and saw the flames circling from the engine-room. It was black as night on that deck, but I knew that I could get through, as the flames were aft, and save myself, so I jumped over the boiler-deck railing to the cotton below, and then went ashore on the stage. I don't think any one followed behind me. When I got out on the cotton I saw a large number of persons forward on the lower deck, who were trying to get out on the stage, which had been placed on top of the cotton and reaching to the banks. Cries of 'For God's sake press that end of the stage and let us get off,' rang out over the noise and din of the fire. I called on those standing near me to stand on the stage with me, which they did. We braced here, and all rushed off and were saved. I then went ashore and walked up the bank to get a look at the stern of the boat and see what assistance I could be to those aft. Here men, women and children were screaming: 'For God's sake come and save us.' Andy Pierce and his partner cut the yawl loose and lowered it. Four negroes leaped into it, cut the painters and were trying to go off with it when Andy escaped into the boat, injuring himself by the act—forced the boat back and allowed twenty persons to enter it, and with his living cargo, landed safe on shore. He hastened back, and on his second trip he saved equally as large a number. On his third trip he saved nine, and on his fourth and last trip three. By this time all that remained of the J. M. White was her hull. I never beheld so awful a sight before. While at the stern of the boat Mr. Stafford, with his wife by his side, seized his little girls and threw them into the river. They sank instantly and never came to the surface. Why the father and mother did not leap after the children is a mystery. They did not, and both were suffocated and burned to death."

"One of the sailors burned his hands in saving a woman who was in the river between two bales of cotton struggling for life. I don't think, owing to the intense heat, any one on the stern of the boat could live over ten minutes. The captain of the watch jumped overboard and was drowned. There was a man trying to push a prize steer from Natchez into the river, but could not, and both man and beast were crushed to death by the caving in of the cabin stanchions. Billy McColley threw a coat over his face, and fighting his way on his knees through the smoke, was saved." Regarding the origin of the fire, Mr. Dolson said that he had been told that the flames were first discovered about the doctor, about midships.

A Letter From Mrs. Cleveland to the SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 15.—A Young Ladies' Christian Temperance Union was organized here yesterday. The president of the organization, Mrs. D. W. Swan, had received the following letter from President Cleveland's wife concerning the alleged protest of St. Louis women against the use of wine at a gathering at the house of a cabinet officer at Washington.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Dec. 11. DEAR MADAM:—Your letter in behalf of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in your city has been received. Allow me to thank you for its contents. Some day return from New York I have been able to look over all the mail received in my absence. So far, nothing has come to my notice from the St. Louis division of your organization. I am inclined to think with you that the matter is a mistake, started possibly by the use of a newspaper to injure the Women's Christian Temperance Union. With best wishes very sincerely,

FRANCIS CLEVELAND.

Learned it in Prison.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—In the divorce case of Mrs. Stanton against her husband, Rev. Dr. Stanton, of Brooklyn, Stanton's brother-in-law testified yesterday that Stanton had formerly gone under another name. Witness saw him braiding a mat, and asked him where he learned to do it, and Stanton said he learned it while in prison.

A Victim of the Riot.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 15.—Bernard Heens, who was wounded in the riot Monday died yesterday. The man under arrest on a charge of having shot him will be held for murder. His name is John Kelsey. There was no further disorder yesterday. Cars were running on both Saker and Geary streets.

LOCAL NEWS.

W. W. FOSTER was sheriff of Macon county six years. His report to the county board shows that the county is indebted to him $637.86.

Orators in bulk and by the can, dressed poultry and family groceries at Peter Clirich's grocery store.

You know it is good, therefore continue to buy Hatfield & Co.'s White Foam flour.

EVANGELIST DEAN will give his crowning Bible reading on "The Second Coming of Christ" at the Presbyterian church this evening, considered by him the key note to all Bible study. Everybody invite to hear him.

CHOICE country butter, oysters in bulk, California fruits and breakfast bacon at D. H. Heilman & Son's grocery store.

TRADE with Henry Bauer on East Main street. He will supply you with groceries and fruits.

FROM Philadelphia, Pa.—I am selling more of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup than all other cough remedies combined, and the demand is still increasing.

B. J. C. TOSOLD, Druggist, 267 S. Second Street.

"There's such divinity doth hedge a king that treason" fears to touch him. But rheumatism is no respecter of persons, and Royalty would do well to patronize Salvation Oil, the great pain cure.

ALL seekers for Santa Claus should call at Abel & Locke's carpet house. There will be found a choice display of household novelties.

HELLO, JUNIORS! All Juniors and all boys who desire to become Juniors and would like to join a Chautauque Junior Reading Circle, be at the gymnasium tomorrow evening at 7 p. m. Tell the other boys to be on hand. GEN'L Sec'y. dec15-2w

LADIES, if you wish to surprise your best friend, do not waste time in looking at old chestnut ties, mufflers, handkerchiefs, etc., but go at once to John Irwin's White Front and make your selections from an elaborate line of novelties. dec15-2w

Don't forget that all leading grocers sell Shellaburger's White Lint and Daily Bread flour.

WINTER CLOTHING at bottom prices. Now is the time if you want bargains, as the stock of Winter Goods is too heavy to carry over, and must be sold. Remember the place, A. F. Ross, Water st. Dec 13-2w

She Won't Marry Him.

Sam Jones, the carpenter, who was arrested and jailed yesterday on a bastardy charge, preferred by Henrietta Mitchell, a handsome young girl of 22, appeared before Justice Curtis this forenoon. When arrested he averred that he would marry the girl, acknowledging that he had betrayed her; but when he offered to do so this morning in the presence of the court and spectators, Miss Mitchell flatly refused to consent to the proposition, which answer gave Sam a sudden backset. There was nothing for the court to do but fix the statutory bond, $800, and Jones failing to furnish security went to jail in charge of Deputy Foster. Miss Mitchell has been a servant girl in a boarding house in East William street, and Jones has been boarding there. The girl's relatives reside near Macon. She evidently puts no reliance in Jones' word, and is disposed to hear her claims alone, while she invokes the law to punish her self-confessed betrayer for his treachery. He will have to lay in jail until the county court meets, when under the law Judge Nelson will enter an order that Jones pay $500 for the support of the unborn child. He has no means, and if he cannot find security, he will have to wait it out in jail. The time he shall be confined in jail is at the discretion of the court. However, the matter may be settled soon by the marriage of the couple, Jones says he wants to marry her and will go to housekeeping, if Henrietta will have him as a husband.

BEHOLD easy chairs and furniture to suit you at Dunsman & Meyer's store in Haworth block.

Ring up Niedermeyer. He will supply you with family groceries and Decatur coal.

Driven Out On the Walk.
That swindling Purgatory book agent, John O'Callaghan, got a cold deal out on West Main street while he was here, by being driven out of the house for his impudence. He gained admission to the residence by quickly passing into the parlor with his bundle, and there was nothing left for the surprised little woman to do but follow him, chiefly to see that he didn't carry off the piano, or any of the ornaments on the mantle piece. Substantially the following conversation ensued:

The Agent—"Allow me, madam, to show you these illustrated books, which you can have at the very low price of $36 for the set! Just look at them; they are worth twice the sum, and you can have them on the monthly installment plan by giving me your address."

The lady, who was miffed at the impudence of the chap and correctly put him down for a sharper at a glance, said she didn't want the books, and added: "No; I don't care for them. I have no use for them. Have all I want."

The Agent, bridling up to make a bluff, said: "Don't want them! Why, Mrs. A., and B., and C. have bought them. May be you can't pay for them. If I had thought that, I wouldn't have wasted my time coming in here. You can't appreciate the value of these books; you haven't any sense."

This was too much for the lady, who was by this time as angry as it was possible for her to get, and she quickly opened two doors and with some spirit ordered O'Callaghan to leave the house on the instant. She jawed him good, and wouldn't allow him to peek up his trousers. He was mosed out in a hurry, and he had to put his traps in shape out on the sidewalk, while the enraged lady slammed the door to and locked it with an emphatic snap.

Young People's History of Illinois.

This is the title of a new work just about ready to be issued, which will fill a long felt want, especially among teachers and young people. The work is from the pen of Mr. Arthur O. Dresbach, formerly a public school teacher of this county. The scope of the work is, of necessity, extensive, covering as it does a period extending from pre historic times down to the present, and the same necessarily compels brevity in order to give the book the other requisite—cheapness. A somewhat hasty perusal of the advance sheets gives us the impression that the Young People's History of Illinois is a concise but well written work, that will meet with a large sale and prove to be an immensely popular addition to the historical library of any student. The book will be sold on subscription, at prices ranging from $1.00 to $2.00, according to style of binding.

Hill is Wanted.

W. H. Hill, the Austin township farmer who sent his stock and part of his goods to Nebraska yesterday, is in demand today. Part of his effects have been attached for debts, and will be held. The goods are parts of wagons and farming implements, the other parts having been shipped. It is believed Hill is yet in the county. He may be arrested on sight for defrauding creditors.

"School for Scandal."

Miss Rose Coghlan, who will appear Friday night in "School for Scandal," and will be supported by a company of special merit, has worked hard at her profession to obtain her present position as one of the brightest stars on the American stage. The questionable advertising of the latter day, where social scandals excite public curiosity and draw crowded houses, has never been her lot. Her career on the stage is a proof of the fact that she has aimed at being a lady and an artist, and her success is a further demonstration that respectability in private life and genuine dramatic ability are more acceptable to the general public than the ephemeral notoriety which scandal may give to a lady who prominently comes before the public.

Old Santa at His Old Quarters.

He arrived Monday and will remain with them until January 1st. It is almost impossible to describe the pleasant surprises J. H. Black & Son have prepared for the little ones and their mamas, in fact all their customers, on entering their mammoth Shoe Emporium. The eye is greeted with immense displays of fine Christmas slippers and fine shoes, tastefully arranged. In their show window is a miniature brick house, the side of which is opened to admit of a view of the interior, in which are seen the old-fashioned fireplace and a miniature set of furniture. Old Santa has just left, and hanging on the walls and chimney are seen the toys and presents. Old Santa is just getting out of the chimney on top of the house. He is nicely attired in a suit of fur, and an elegant crimson velvet robe trimmed in white fur is around his shoulders. To the right are seen his four reindeer, nicely blanketed, awaiting the return of their kind old master, Santa, and impatiently pawing the ground. They are harnessed to an elegant sleigh loaded down with presents. Hanging over all is the kind greeting of the firm: "A Merry Christmas." On all sides is displayed an elegant stock of ladies', girls' and children's boots and shoes. The firm is offering special bargains in their line until January 1st. J. H. Black & Son invite the public to witness their elegant display, and every caller will be presented with a handsome card.

Food makes Blood and Blood makes Beauty. Improper digestion of food necessarily produces bad blood, resulting in a feeling of fullness in the stomach, acidity, heartburn, sick-headache and other dyspeptic symptoms. A closely confined life causes indigestion, constipation, biliousness and loss of appetite. To remove these troubles there is no remedy equal to Prickly Ash Bitters. It has been tried and proven to be a specific. Nov18-d&wimo

Pianos and Organs.
